

"In a perfect hail of anti-aircraft fire"—

An utter disregard of self marks the work of our flying men. To win whatever the cost; to consider the direst peril and to think of the longest odds as "all in the day's work," is a purely unconscious part of their heroic achievement. And what of us? The will to win is not lacking in us. We would give, as our fighting men give—by the promptings of our hearts.

Let us so lend that we too shall achieve that measure of service which does away with all sense of sacrifice and which must result in final victory.

Make your dollars fight

Air-fighting is expensive as well as important. Our aviation uses from five to eight planes a year. Air planes cost from $7,000 to $25,000 each and we must have 25,000 of them.

Buy Bonds to your utmost. Have a personal interest in the thrilling deeds of our men in France.

Don't envy a fighter

Buy bonds and be one

UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT
BUREAU OF WAR FINANCE
WASHINGTON, D. C. 20315